The League—Div. III. LUTON v. CRYSTAL PALACE. Sat., Dec. 24th.

Apart from our hope that Crystal Palace will be beaten to-day, we wish them a very happy Christmas. They have not had a very successful season, and have been unfortunate in the matter of injuries. Last week they had a severe blow in an injury to their clever centre-forward, Simpson, who will be out of the game for a few weeks. Well, we have had our share of trouble, and are hoping that we have done with a casualty list for this season.

Although the Palace are not doing so well, we hardly think that we shall be able to repeat last season's victory, when we won by six goals to one, but we hope our lads are going to play well enough in their Christmas games to give the supporters plenty of confidence for the Cup-tie at Barnsley. That may be looking well ahead, but the success at Stockport has led to the supporters feeling confident that the team will at least draw, and there should be a strong following at Oakwell, particularly as the L.M.S. are running an excursion at a very cheap rate.

On Monday our first team will travel to Bournemouth, which is plenty far enough for a Christmas game, but not quite so bad as last season, when they had to go to Cardiff. The Reserves will be at home to the Arsenal Reserves, and both Brentford and Fulham are looking for every club to do them a good turn at the expense of the Arsenal. We hope we shall be able to oblige them, but at any rate there should be a game well worth seeing, and we trust that you will all get an early Christmas dinner, enjoy it to the full, and then come here fit and willing to cheer on the Reserves.

On Tuesday we have Bournemouth here in the return League game, and we want a record crowd. It should be a good match, and if we can take the full six points from the holiday games we shall start the New Year full of confidence and hope for a rapid rise in the League table.

TO ALL OUR READERS: A VERY HAPPY CHRISTMAS AND A BRIGHT AND PROSPEROUS NEW YEAR.

PALACE

There is something really fascinating about the story of "The Flag Lieutenant," so successful as a stage play and silent film. Lieut.-Col. W. F. Drury, who, with Major Leo Trevor, was responsible for the stage version, served with the Royal Marines in the China and Mediterranean stations, and was a familiar figure in Alexandria and Cairo.

It is not generally known that a section of the plot of "The Flag Lieutenant" is based on Lieut.-Col. Drury's own experience in the Marine Service, and this fact undoubtedly speaks for itself in the realism of the action in the new production from the British and Dominions Studios.

"The Flag Lieutenant" will attract all classes, and will prove a first-rate matinee draw for Saturdays, when boys have greater freedom. The movement of war vessels, the fighting in and around the fort, and, particularly, the flag lieutenant's dash for help, will be "great fun" for youngsters whose minds inevitably turn to grim fighting and deeds of valour.

WELLINGTON

The ominous, menacing phrase, "put on the spot," is creeping more and more into newspaper stories. In many large cities gangsters establish their own kingdoms, fight their own battles, execute traitorous subjects, and in general behave as if there was no law outside their own peculiar, unwritten code. When a czar of racketeers puts an enemy or traitor "on the spot," that man's life is worth less than if he had been legally indicted for murder.

The struggle of two powerful gang chiefs is a dominant factor in the Columbia picture, "The Last Parade," which is the chief holiday feature at this Cinema. One man is a former reporter, who has become king of the underworld and the other is a typical example of poverty-bred gangster.

Jack Holt and Tom Moore, two popular stars, are featured. The wise-cracking type is an innovation for Jack Holt, and much interest is attached to his appearance in this new role. Constance Cummings supplies the feminine interest in "The Last Parade."

It is supported by that famous pair, Laurel and Hardy, in "Be Big."

ALMA

The Alma have been fortunate in securing a real bumper holiday feature in "One Hour With You," with those two famous stars, Maurice Chevalier and Jeanette MacDonald.

When he loves 'em, do they stay loved? Maurice Chevalier was never more romantically attractive than in "One Hour With You," his newest starring picture, with Jeanette MacDonald, Genevieve Tobin, Charlie Ruggles and Roland Young.

"Tom Brown of Culver," the Alma's second feature, is an excellent drama of youth, and provides excellent entertainment on new lines. It is a spirit of youthful adventures and endeavour, predominant with pathos and cheer cunningly alternated.

GRAND THEATRE

"For the Love of Mike"—a comedy play with tunes—is the Christmas attraction at the Grand. It is a real novelty in musical plays—a rollicking story—full of hilarious comedy situations and tuneful catchy song numbers. An excellent cast has been secured by Mr. Barry O'Brien (who presents the show) headed by Peggy Payne, who plays "Mike." Freddy Payne is partnered in his comic doings by Thorp Devereux. Harry Rousby has a fine character part, and other outstanding artistes are Nell Rene, Leila Langley, Donald Fergusson, Ernest Hulley and Theo Leslie.

EMPIRE

Elevation of Warren William, who is now exclusively engaged in First National pictures, to stardom is only a question of moments, so great has been his popularity—and drawing power—in recent talkies.

William, who made his talkie debut in "The Honour of the Family," just over a year ago, taking the role of the dashing and domineering Legionnaire opposite Bebe Daniels, has proved one of the most consistent good actors on the screen.

The latest picture to feature Warren William is "The Dark Horse," the holiday attraction at the Empire, and it is regarded as his best yet. William takes the role of Blake, a high-pressure political agent who is engaged by a party to get a nonentity elected to the office of Governor.
