Behind the Scenes—Trainer's Tribute

by NOMAD

It's often thought that a trainer's only duty is to run onto the pitch with a magic sponge.

But there's much more to it than that, as our own trainer Norman Rimmington will tell you.

For his back-room tasks are almost endless. He spends every morning with the players and most afternoons re-studding and inspecting boots . . . about 22 pairs of them.

Norman, who played 154 consecutive matches as goalkeeper for Hartlepools and has also had experience with Wisbech, Buxton, and, of course, Barnsley, also has the part-timers to look after.

"The job keeps me very busy but I love it," he says. "And if the results are right it can be the most satisfying job in the world."

Norman's experience in the professional field has stood him in good stead. For the players know that generally he can come up with an answer to their problems.

And next time Norman trots on with that dripping sponge, remember that there's much, much more to his job than that.

From the Manager's Office...

The First of the Season

by the Manager, Mr. JOHNNY STEELE

Well we have broken our duck ! The point which we gained from our home game with Millwall was our first of the season.

And while I should obviously have liked to have had more from our opening spell several other clubs are either in the same position or have not collected one at all at the time of writing.

So despite all those grim forebodings which we have been hearing about the situation could be much worse.

But for me the main thing from Saturdays match, which I did not see because I was on a scouting mission, was the report on my return that some of the players were beginning to regain their confidence.

In football once a players confidence goes, his play suffers, he becomes a target for the crowd and things only get worse.

So in the second half when our play came truer to form should be a tonic for the players — and of course, ourselves.

Now is the time our supporters — and I know how well they can do it — to really back the team with their vocal support. That could really help them.
